

We have continued to closely monitor the COVID-19 crisis. After carefully considering the advice from the CDC, WHO, local government officials and event management consultants, we have made the difficult decision to cancel our Midwest Region Coaches Conference (MRCC) 2020. Given social distancing requirements and bans on large gatherings, it is simply not possible for us to execute a 300-400 person conference in the Fall. We do plan to have our next conference in 2022. Please stay tuned for details.

In addition to preserving the health and safety of our conference attendees and local communities, the decision to cancel is also based on our ICF Core Values including Integrity, Excellence, Collaboration and Respect. We are committed to continuing our tradition of creating a safe, physical space where we connect coaches to inspire positive change for individuals, leaders and organizations. Those who have attended our conferences in the past understand that this is the heartbeat of our events. As we collectively turn our attention to the 2022 MRCC, we can look forward to a time to celebrate the paths we have forged, the extraordinary circumstances we will have overcome, and the opportunities that have been presented to us as coaches and change agents.

With your current registration, we would like to offer you an opportunity to benefit from an amazing lineup of webinars and other gifts from our speakers and sponsors that will be offered between now and the 2022 conference. Details regarding this offering will be available shortly.

For current MRCC paid registrants, your registration will automatically be transferred to our new 2022 conference dates. Thank you for your patience as our team finalizes incentives to keep your registration in place. This will allow you to stay connected, engage as leaders in the coaching field, and earn CCEUs at no additional cost until we can meet again in person.

Finally, we would like to thank our incredible sponsors, speakers, venue hosts and event collaborators for their continued flexibility, resilience, and support. Without them, none of this is possible. If you are one of our speakers or sponsors, our committee chairs will be in touch with further information.

Thank you and stay safe! Look forward to seeing you in 2022!

Dr. Gina Marx
Chair Midwest Region Coaches Conference
Steering Committee